CRAFTERS' DELIGHT: "Our kids love getting creative in this craft room—and I love it because the creativity isn't happening on the kitchen counter! The cabinets [Granny Smith by Benjamin Moore], sparkly quartz countertops, cement tile flooring [Atlas I by Cement Tile Shop], and Moravian star light fixture make the space extra whimsical."

HIGH PROFILE: "I've been a lover of silhouettes my whole life. My grandmother collected smaller medallion silhouettes that she wore as jewelry. Once I started antiques, I began noticing larger framed ones and became obsessed. I've been collecting my own for 15 years, and I find them wherever I go—from Vermont to London to Aspen."

PERIOD PIECE: "When I designed this porch, I considered the style of our farmhouse, and I used elements of porches I had seen on historic properties throughout Virginia. I love a collected look, so I shopped for pieces that touched my heart, like the antique wall cabinet, which I filled with painted tole, vintage stoneware, and majolica."

MINT TO BE: "I always dreamed of painting my kitchen cabinets this green [Southfield Green by Benjamin Moore] but I knew it wouldn't work in just any kitchen. My 1920s Craftsman came with these original black-and-white floors, so I was stoked to try it here. I added leather pulls [rowzecz.etsy.com], and I just couldn't love the way they turned out more."

BLUE PRINT: "I wanted a modern farmhouse kitchen, something that was practical but also beautiful in a bit of a French country way. That's where my pale pink Lacanche oven range comes in. I can cook anything on that thing, and the pink complements the deep blue cabinets and the brass accents."

BLANKET STATEMENT: "We really like the look of National Park lodges, and I think our house has a little bit of that feel. The simplicity of the Pendleton blankets is really appealing. When our designer, Elizabeth Drake, suggested we use them in all the bedrooms, I thought it was such a great way to keep costs down and still make a unique impact."

MEET THE READER: Phyllis Vandewater

VIEW FROM THE TOP: "In our living room, we were going for 'comfortable elegance.' Natural elements—leather chairs, warm wood furniture—bring the outdoors in, and floor-to-ceiling draperies ['Baudelaire' in Wolf by Holland & Sherry] draw the eye up to our dramatic Douglas fir vaulted ceiling, which makes the room appear larger."
